Consummatu autem duodecima mensis Julii. Anno salutis nre. 1493.
Large folio, Gothic letter, with upwards of 2000 remarkable woodcuts, many being the size of the entire page and several occupying a double page, all of them in a pure, uncolored state, a remarkably fine copy. Half morocco.
First Edition. There can be no doubt that many of the engravings are from the designs of Albert Durer, who was the pupil of Michael Wolgemuth, and it is also worthy of remark that Cross-Hatching first appeared in this book.
Choice and perfect copy, containing the blank pages and supplement "De Sarmatia," often wanting. The fine typography and choice preservation of this well-known book show that the art of printing has made little progress since its infancy.

Philadelphia Printed, London Reprinted, 1780
This is a magnificent copy of the very rare first English Edition of the 'Proposed Book of Common Prayer,' of which it is asserted only fifty copies were printed for the use of the English Prelates, who had but little before given the Episcopal Succession to the American Church. It is undoubtedly much rarer than the American Edition, a fact which before long will be established to the entire satisfaction of the collector.

2 vols. Folio, old calf. Parisiis, 1713
This valuable work is the foundation head of Biblical criticism. Origen did more to establish the text of the Old Testament, as now received, than all others. The Hexapla consists of the Hebrew Text, with its Transcriptions in Greek characters, and the Greek versions of Aquilla, Symmachus, the Septuagint, and Thedotion, Montfaucon. has added the text of the Vulgate and separate Latin translations of the Hebrew and the four Greek texts.

2 vols. 4to, cloth, uncut. London, 1836
On page VII. of the preface this passage occurs: "I have only printed two hundred copies of this work." Of these two hundred only a few got at first into circulation. The tendency of the work is to overturn all the established systems of religion, to destroy received notions upon subjects generally considered sacred, and to substitute a simple unsacerdotal worship. Names hitherto looked upon with veneration by the world are stripped of their honours, and others are lifted from opprobrium to a position of reverence. The powerful though rather dogmatic logic.

2 vols. Folio, vellum. Parisiis, 1628
This learned Bishop, entertaining the common notion that the ancient philosophers had received many truths either immediately or by tradition from Divine relation, whilst in other particulars their writings were full of absurdities, contradictions, and falsehoods, undertook to raise upon this ground a defence of the Divine original of Christianity. This great design he completed in two valuable works, his Preparatio et Demonstratio Evangelica, both which have happily escaped the ravages of time. In providing material for the work Eusebius industriously extracted from ancient writings, of every kind, whatever was suitable to his design, whence these pieces contain many fragments of books which have long since been lost.

The original French title of this most infamous book is "Histoire Critique de Jesus-Christ, ou Analyse Raisonné des Evangèles," published at Amsterdam, 1770. It was twice condemned by the Church of Rome. The first English version, according to Dr. Inman, was published in 1799, and Mr. Houston, its translator or author, was fined £200 and put in the pillory for writing it. The publisher of the second edition was prosecuted, and such of the impressions as could be collected were publicly burned in St. George's Fields by the common hangman.

Very rare.
